Experts Declare The Red Leaders Guilty Of Military Sin

By G. TATES MDANIEL
Washington — (AP)—American military experts speculated Tuesday that the Korean Reds may have committed a military sin that will lead to their own undoing when they plunged recklessly south without even minimum air support.

The 1950 military copybooks say that disaster is the eventual penalty for leaving the "air flank" of an army uncovered.

American officers are puzzled why the North Korean high command—or their Russian masters—neglected to provide air balance for their heavy-hitting ground troops.

Maybe they just thought it wouldn't be necessary. Certainly the invaders could not have known that the United States would jump in so promptly with powerful aerial counter-strokes.

The Red Koreans started off with a handful of Russian-made Yak-9 piston engined fighters and a few slower ground support planes. Even this handful gave them temporary but complete superiority over the virtually nonexistent South Korean Air Force.

Since the U. S. Air Force, ably assisted by hard fighting Australian Mustangs, took the air over Korea, Red airplanes have been little more than a minor nuisance. They have jumped on and shot down a few allied planes and occasionally have been glimpsed through the clouds.

But since the first few days of the war, the Red Air Force has made no serious attempt to interfere with the building up of American ground strength in South Korea.

Yet the U. S. supply lines both in the battle area and along the railroad and highway routes to Pusan, on the southeast coast of Korea, is the only port where American ships can tie up to docks and unload men and equipment directly on waiting freight cars and motor trucks.

North Korea, by contrast, has far less to lose from strategic bombing than most countries. She got practically all of her shooting hardware ready made. Her tanks came from Russia, as did some of her artillery. The rest came from stockpiles of surrendered Japanese equipment.

Rural Residents To Participate In The Farm Safety Week

Harrisburg—Under the theme "Learn and obey farm safety rules," State Secretary of Agriculture Miles Horst urged all rural residents to observe National Farm Safety Week which begins next Sunday, July 23.

He is chairman for Pennsylvania Farm Safety Week sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farm Safety Council.

Immediate purpose of the week is to arouse interest and participation in the farm accident problem, Secretary Horst explained. The ultimate objective is to make farm life a safer, happier and more prosperous way of living. The movement has been endorsed by all leading farm organizations, he added.

"Pennsylvania bears a large share of the losses in time and money caused by farm accidents," he continued. "It is estimated that each year in the nation farm people sustain about 17,500 fatalities from accidents and probably more than 200 of these occur in our State. Out of a million and a half disabling injuries caused by accidents on farms of the country, possibly more than 10,000 happen on Pennsylvania farms and an alarming percentage of the 35,000 farm buildings destroyed by fire each year can be marked against Pennsylvania."

Annual losses represented by these accidents and fires are probably around a billion dollars, according to National Safety Council estimates. The cost represents the equivalent to an annual tax of $35 a year to every farm resident throughout the country.

According to plans announced for observance of Farm Safety Week by Secretary Horst and Harrison S. Nolt, Columbia, who is chairman of the Pennsylvania Rural Safety Committee, rural ministers are being asked to open the week with sermons that place emphasis on saving a life. Monday is home safety day with accent on good housekeeping; on Tuesday emphasis will be on the safe handling of livestock; Wednesday, safety from falls; Thursday, highway safety day; Friday, safety with farm machinery and Saturday is set for review day of all phases of accident prevention and the learning and practicing of safety rules.

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
Warren, Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir:
While President Truman addressed the Scouts at the Valley Forge Jamboree, I sat amid a North Dakota group next to a Scout from Warren. He was working at the Trading Post and has a rather, in Warren, interested in aviation. A lad about 18, he made an extremely favorable impression on this Scoutmaster—the kind of impression that makes you feel folks in Warren must be fine people to grow — lad like that!

When he left, he insisted that the young Cub Scouts with me share his tickets for soft drinks and refused to let us buy them even when I protested that he had paid for them. Shortly afterwards, one of our boys found a Jamboree neckerchief he left behind. It bears some autographs he secured at the Jamboree and will have some sentimental value to him. Will you help us locate this Warren Scout so we may return the neckerchief to him?

Sincerely yours,
Wm. N. Tanner, Jr., Scoutmaster Troop 404, Philadelphia Council Boy Scouts of America.

(Editor's Note: It would be appreciated if the Scout mentioned in the letter will contact the Times-Mirror.)

Luncheon Meeting Is Held at Forge Club House By County Library Friends

The Friends of the Warren County Library held a very successful luncheon meeting for community representatives Wednesday afternoon in the National Forge clubhouse at Irvine. The group unanimously decided in favor of holding a county-wide meeting the last week in August.

Mrs. Gerry Archibald, president, opened the session following the luncheon with a summary of the county bookmobile program and the organization of the Friends of the Warren County Library. The talk clarified the background from the time of first consultation with the county superintendent of schools and the county commissioners regarding the bookmobile program. Mrs. Archibald's report of communities visited for talks, the showing of the county libraries films and the Bookmobile tour was an impressive one.

A roll call of communities was conducted by the secretary, Mrs. Calvin Buerkle including greetings from those unable to attend. These reports strongly favored the proposed three year demonstration plan and the establishment of a county library program. The most recent resolution favoring a county library program with bookmobile service was a unanimous one passed at the annual meeting of the Warren Library Association last week.

Mrs. Buerkle read a letter from Mrs. Jean Lopez, head librarian

U. S. NEEDS QUALITY TO WIN

American troops in Korea are not battle-hardened veterans. They're green soldiers struggling against great numerical odds with insufficient and ineffective weapons.

These men were garrison troops in occupied Japan, not even thoroughly trained for combat. Despite these extreme handicaps, they are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy in an often valiant rear guard action.

The hard truth, in the opinion of Bruce Blossat, NEA Service editorial writer, is that the Korean war imposed such disadvantages upon them because the U. S. Army is almost totally lacking in combat effectiveness for 1950 warfare. Taking assurances from comfortable prophecies that Russia couldn't fight a war until at least 1952, we at home shrugged off the task of building a real defense.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, Hanson Baldwin, New York Times military expert, declares we won World War II not because we had the best soldiers in the world but because, with our allies and our huge industrial output, we mounted the biggest military machine. Baldwin says:

"Given equal armament and equal numbers, the enemy usually won. Our victories were fashioned out of overwhelming superiority in weight of metal and in numbers."

To be sure, he adds, we had some crack fighting units, some good leaders and some fine equipment. On the sea and in the air, we gained a few key triumphs over stronger enemy forces. But generally, says Baldwin, our land forces didn't measure up in basic fighting quality.

"Captured enemy intelligence documents repeatedly mention the lack of aggressiveness of the American infantry," he writes. "Our own training program constantly tried to step up the battlefield initiative of our troops."

Baldwin also asserts that our generalship, though usually good, seldom merited the label "best."

And he runs through a long catalogue of weapons to show we frequently fell short of the enemy and our allies in the quality of our arms. Moreover, he insists we still lag in such vital categories as tanks, tactical aircraft, artillery rockets, anti-aircraft and self-propelled guns, and new aircraft carriers.

But against all the deficiencies of men and equipment, Baldwin balances these military virtues: "Intelligence and initiative were American strong points. . . In general education, mechanical aptitude, technical skills and factory output, we were greatly superior."

Too, he says, we had SOME of the best equipment in every field, generally where commercial use aided technical advances. And in construction, engineering and supply, "our services wrought minor miracles."

These virtues suggest why our soldiers may not be the world's best. The qualities they do have are those exalted and developed by a peace-loving people. Ours is not a military civilization dedicated to the soldier, as was the case in Germany and Japan.

Furthermore, we haven't learned to dramatize our democratic freedom as a fighting cause, as Russia dramatizes fanatical Communism. And, very important, we've never had to defend our own soil the way Britain and Russia had to do in World War II.

A vast continental island far from the scene of our recent wars, we had come to take our liberties and our safety for granted. It was hard for us to see the peril in a conflict waged thousands of miles from American shores. It still is.

If war came to our soil, if our freedom were directly threatened, there's little doubt how we would fight. What we must realize is that with Russia grasping for power everywhere, American soil is indeed menaced by every Soviet breach of the peace. For today we are the real enemy—the only enemy with strength.

Against colossal Russia, numbers and material substance would not necessarily be on our side. To be ready for such an adversary, we must have both quality and quantity in men and arms. The higher virtues of a peace-loving people are not enough in this crisis.

Announcement that reactivation of the Warren County Defense organization on a scale similar to that which prevailed during World War II is to be pursued with all possible speed will find residents of the area willing and anxious to be of service in any capacity in which they may be drafted.

On the brighter side of the news during the week is the 14-cent hike in the price of Pennsylvania grade crude oil, an announcement that was learned with genuine satisfaction by stripper well owners of this section.

In doing your weekend shopping, remember that any attempt at hoarding shows a definite lack of patriotism, and, as President Truman has reminded, is selfish, foolish and unnecessary.

Getting a Better Look at What We Face

Here And There

Our experiences of the past few weeks convince us, readers of the Times-Mirror are much interested in pets. We made this discovery through frequent publication of small items soliciting good homes for dogs and cats. It has been learned that in many instances where such paragraphs appeared those responsible for them received numerous calls, many of them coming after the animals had been placed, usually the person calling expressing regret that they were too late. This situation emphasizes the fact that it is not necessary for any person to abandon pets that are not wanted. Good homes can be found for them if proper methods are pursued to locate some family anxious to adopt them.

Here's a paragraph from the Warren Ledger of 64 years ago that clears up the origin of that well known saying, generally referred to activities of politicians—particularly congressmen or senators: It is common enough to hear this saying of an absent congressman "gone home to fix his fences." In these days of discoveries its origin is revealed. In the spring of 1880, some six weeks before the meeting of the Chicago convention, Secretary of the Treasury John Sherman announced at a cabinet meeting that he was going home to Ohio. "On politics bent?" inquired a friend at the cabinet table. "No," said Honest John. "In the spring of the year the fences about my farm at Mansfield require a great deal of fixing. I must go out and see that it is properly done." A hearty laugh followed, signifying that nobody was deceived. The incident got around, and now everyone knows what the looking after a politician's fence means. In this case Sherman did not make any successful repair to speak of.

This And That: From the number of men (and women) observed hanging under the railing fishing must be good under the Hickory street bridge. . . Both the Conewango Club and the Past Exalted Rulers' Association of the Warren Lodge of Elks have picnics slated for the 26th. . . "Satchel" Paige, former Cleveland Indians hurler, currently on exhibition tour with the Philadelphia Stars, is reported to be reaping an average of $2,000 a week. The veteran negro flinger is being paid on a percentage of the attendance wherever the Stars play.

. . . Jerry Rock, a likeable chap with an interesting background of having served in India during World War II, now division representative of the United Press, called at the office Thursday morning. After a tour of the offices and shop, Rock declared he was surprised to find such a completely equipped and attractive newspaper plant in a town the size of Warren. . . Attorney Walter H. Scott, of Corry, well known throughout Warren county, has been handed the task of organizing the Corry civilian defense set-up along the lines under which it operated in World War II, when Mayor J. Fred Ainley, with approval of council, appointed him chairman and co-ordinator of the project. . . 400 members of the Franklin Lodge of Elks and guests attended the annual picnic held Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Polk playgrounds. An orator was a feature of the picnic lunch. . . We have received a reminder about the annual Wattsburg fair, which this year will celebrate two-thirds of a century of continuously successful fairs, opening Tuesday, August 29 and continuing through Saturday, September 2. . . Thursday 1:30, Chicago at Philadelphia.
Thursday 8:30, Pittsburgh at Boston.
Friday 1:30, Open Date Time.

There they are... a lot of games for WNAE-FM there. All games will be preceded by Warm-Up Time just 15 minutes before broadcast time. If a small pun may be permitted! With all these games with Brooklyn and Boston it looks like someone is trying to put the "B" on the Bucs!

Every now and then we like to give a little boost and reminder to some of the day time programs heard on WNAE-FM and perhaps forgotten about. 9:00 and 10:00 a. m. are tops with Robert Hurligh and Cecil Brown reporting the news. Mr. Hurligh is regularly heard from Chicago and Mr. Brown is usually heard from wherever there is news in the making. Cecil Brown is one of the foremost radio commentators and reporters in the world today and his reporter's zeal for tracking the news to its source has produced many of the best news broadcasts heard on the air anywhere. Just this past week, Mr. Brown has originated his broadcasts from several points around the country as he went out to personally feel the national pulse concerning the Korean situation. Mr. Hurligh and Mr. Brown are heard Monday through Friday over

LON, DON AND DRAMA

When it comes to tracking down elusive lawbreakers Lon Clark (right), as "Nick Carter, Master Detective," can always be counted on to beat his antagonists, frequently represented in various roles by Don Douglas (left), in the Mutual Sunday evening crime drama broadcasts.

WNAE-FM. These are just two of the top day time programs heard on WNAE-FM. Check the daily schedule here in the Times-Mirror for other top Mutual programs heard over WNAE-FM. The management of WNAE and WNAE-FM hopes to have an announcement in the near future concerning increased service from the FM station.

Having a program coming up Sunday at 6:00 over WNAE that should have both a great deal of entertainment and information. Radio's bad boy, Henry Morgan, and his pal Gerard, real name Arnold Stang, have gotten together a little 30 minute piece called "Fun With Fear". This program is presented in cooperation with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and deals, in a light-hearted manner, with common superstitions, comparing them to superstitions and mistaken beliefs about the origins and treatment of polio. Good listening and good information. As was noted the other day, the Army and Air Force Recruiting service presented WNAE with a plaque for the wall in recognition of regularly scheduling the Voice of the Army show. At the same time it was announced that the program is now listed as Stars on Parade and next Monday's broadcast at 7:30 p. m. will feature Bob Crosby with his orchestra and the Serenaders. Bob will sing four of his most requested songs on this first program in the series "Stars on Parade".

MRS. EBBA LARSON
Mrs. Ebba Sophia Larson, widow of Nels P. Larson and last charter member of the Bethlehem Covenant church in Market street, died suddenly at 9:50 a. m. today at her home, 11 Jefferson avenue. While her condition had not been serious, she had been in failing health for some time.

Born in Ostergotland, Sweden, on October 17, 1872, she came to Warren at the age of 17 years and had resided here since. She was one of the charter members when the Bethlehem Congregational parish, Middle East Conference of the Evangelical Mission Covenant Church of America, was formed in the spring of 1891. Changing the name a few years ago to Bethlehem Covenant church, the parish first held its services in a hall in Liberty street.

Mrs. Larson served the church as a deaconess for a number of years, had taught its Older Women's Bible Class until January of this year, and was active in the Lydia Society, the parish Ladies' Aid, serving it as both president and vice president. The congregation remembered her with a birthday party on the occasion of her 75th anniversary two years ago and paid tribute to her years of active and faithful service.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Erickson; one sister, Amanda Carlson, also two grandchildren, Jon and Daniel, all of Warren. Her husband and two brothers preceded her in death. Removal has been made to the Templeton Funeral Home, where friends will be received at the usual hours after 2 p. m. Saturday.

IT'S DEATH, MY DARLING!
By Amelia Reynolds Long
Chapter 24
I FOUND Bobby, Henri, and Cousin Jeff sitting in a little group on the west gallery. They must have read my news in my face, for Cousin Jeff asked at once: "Raoul's been found, Peter? Where?"
I blurted out my story. "Dédé waiting there with him," I finished. "He said one of you should go look for Beau and the sheriff."
"We'd better both go," Cousin Jeff decided. There was a sudden grimace about him that made him appear almost a stranger. "Henri, you take the fields on the other side of the road. I'll take this side."
When they had gone, Bobby and I sat for a moment in silence. "How did it happen this time, Peter?" she finally asked.
"I don't know," I answered wearily. "I didn't see him. But what difference does it make?"
"It might make a great deal of difference," Bobby replied slowly. "The way she said it, even more than what she said, gave me a nasty little prod in the part of my mind where my imagination is located."
"What's that supposed to mean?" I demanded.
"Three nights ago," she said, "Claude died of a heart attack. Last night, Lee committed suicide. Night before that, Uncle Raoul disappeared and died—we don't yet know how. Peter, I don't believe all three of those deaths, coming so close together that way, were just coincidences. I'm afraid—afraid of Henri."
I knew what she meant. "Peter," she asked, "Why do you suppose that Uncle Raoul was found where he was? I mean, why did he go there in the first place?"
"Why, I—I don't know," I stammered. "What's your explanation?" I asked.
"I think," Bobby replied, still with her eyes upon Aunt Delphine, "that it had something to do with those questions he was asking about Colonel Dumont's death that evening at supper. You remember? And I believe his own death was in some way connected with the thing, whatever it was, that Colonel Dumont had found out shortly before he died. That's why the way Uncle Raoul died may be important."
I didn't follow that, and said so.
Bobby tried to explain. "If he committed suicide, like Lee did, then whatever it was he found out, no matter how terrible it was, was something natural. But if he didn't—if he died the way Claude did—then it had to be—the other thing."
Then a new thought occurred to me. Beau also possessed that knowledge, or claimed that he did. Did that mean that he—? But I refused even to consider that idea. No matter how hideous the secret was, Beau wouldn't seek death as a way out. He had picked to think of—Pick who was alone now except for him.
I thought of what he had said that morning, when Amédée had asked him what it was that Lee and Colonel Dumont had discovered.
"Don't make me answer that, Dédé," he had said. "It's something you'll all be happier for not knowing."
I DON'T know how long Bobby and I had been sitting there, each wrapped in thought, when

DEMONSTRATE NEW AID FOR BLIND BOWLERS AT CHICAGO CONVENTION

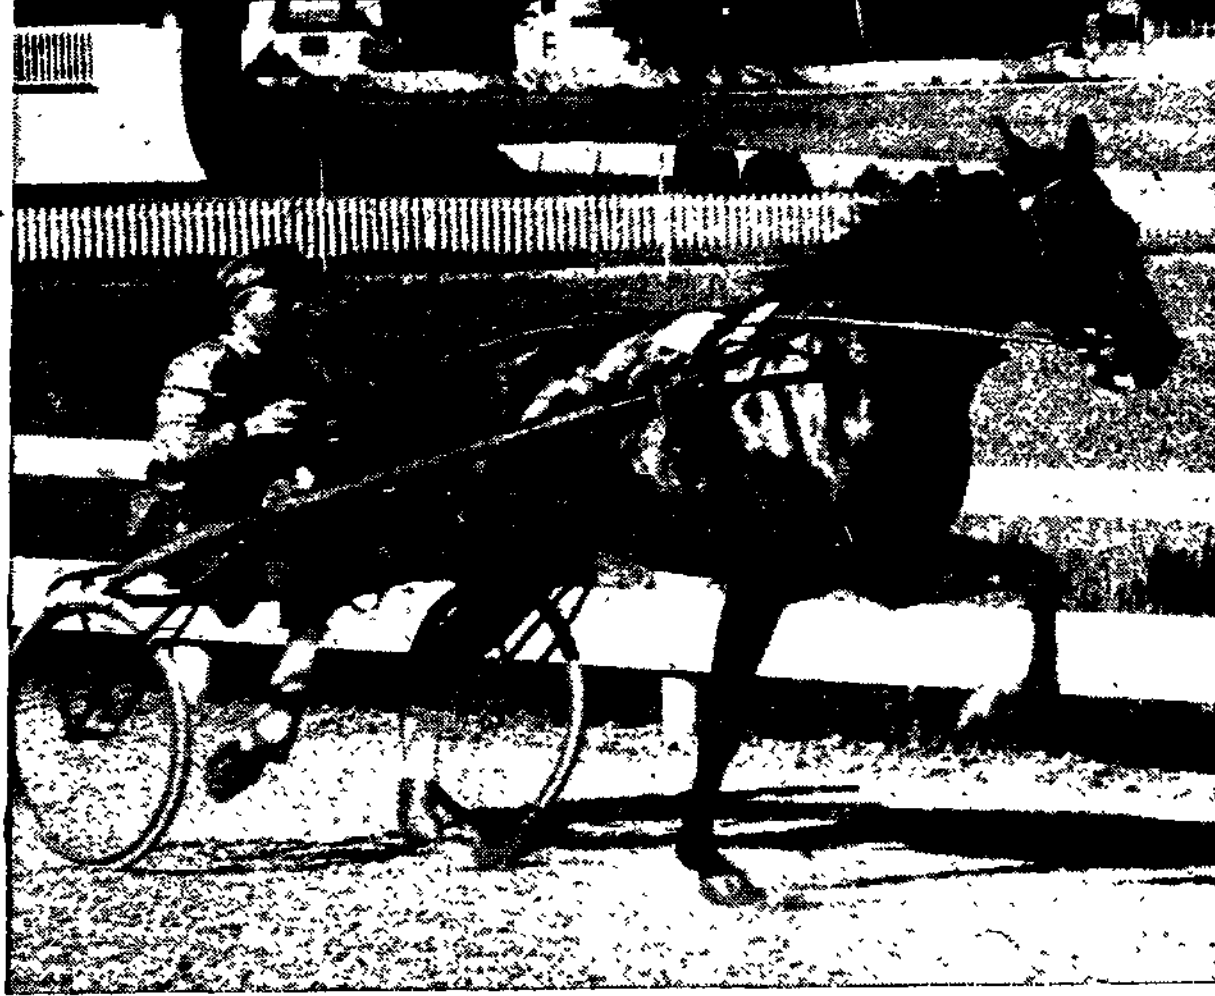

WEEK-END PRACTICE FLIGHTS KEEP FORMER R.A.F. FLIERS IN SHAPE

Copyright, 1950, by Acme Newspictures

R.A.F.'S AUXILIARY AIRMEN—Winging away from their peacetime jobs and lives at North Weald, Essex, England, former wartime aces of the Royal Air Force are shown flying in formation. The fliers keep their fingers used to the touch of the controls by week-end flying in Britain and manning a complete group of auxiliary squadrons 20 strong. Planes are jet De Havilland Vampires.

TAKING A TURN—Florican, bay son of Spud Hanover, is shown taking a fast mile at Goshen, N.Y., where the $85,000 Hambletonian stake will take place in August. Harry Pownall, who will drive the colt owned by E. R. Harriman of New York, is shown in the sulky. Florican is a leading favorite.

AGE IS RESPECTED HERE—John Griffith, 99, and his 21-year-old car have been accorded the special privilege of parking anywhere in the city of Red Cloud, Nebr., even in no parking zones. But, because of his venerable age, no policeman in the city would have arrested Griffith, anyway.

AID FOR BLIND BOWLERS—A new aid for blind bowlers was demonstrated at the convention of the National Federation of the Blind in Chicago, Ill. Mrs. Florence Horton shows how keggers grasp a railing running parallel to the alley and serving as a guide.

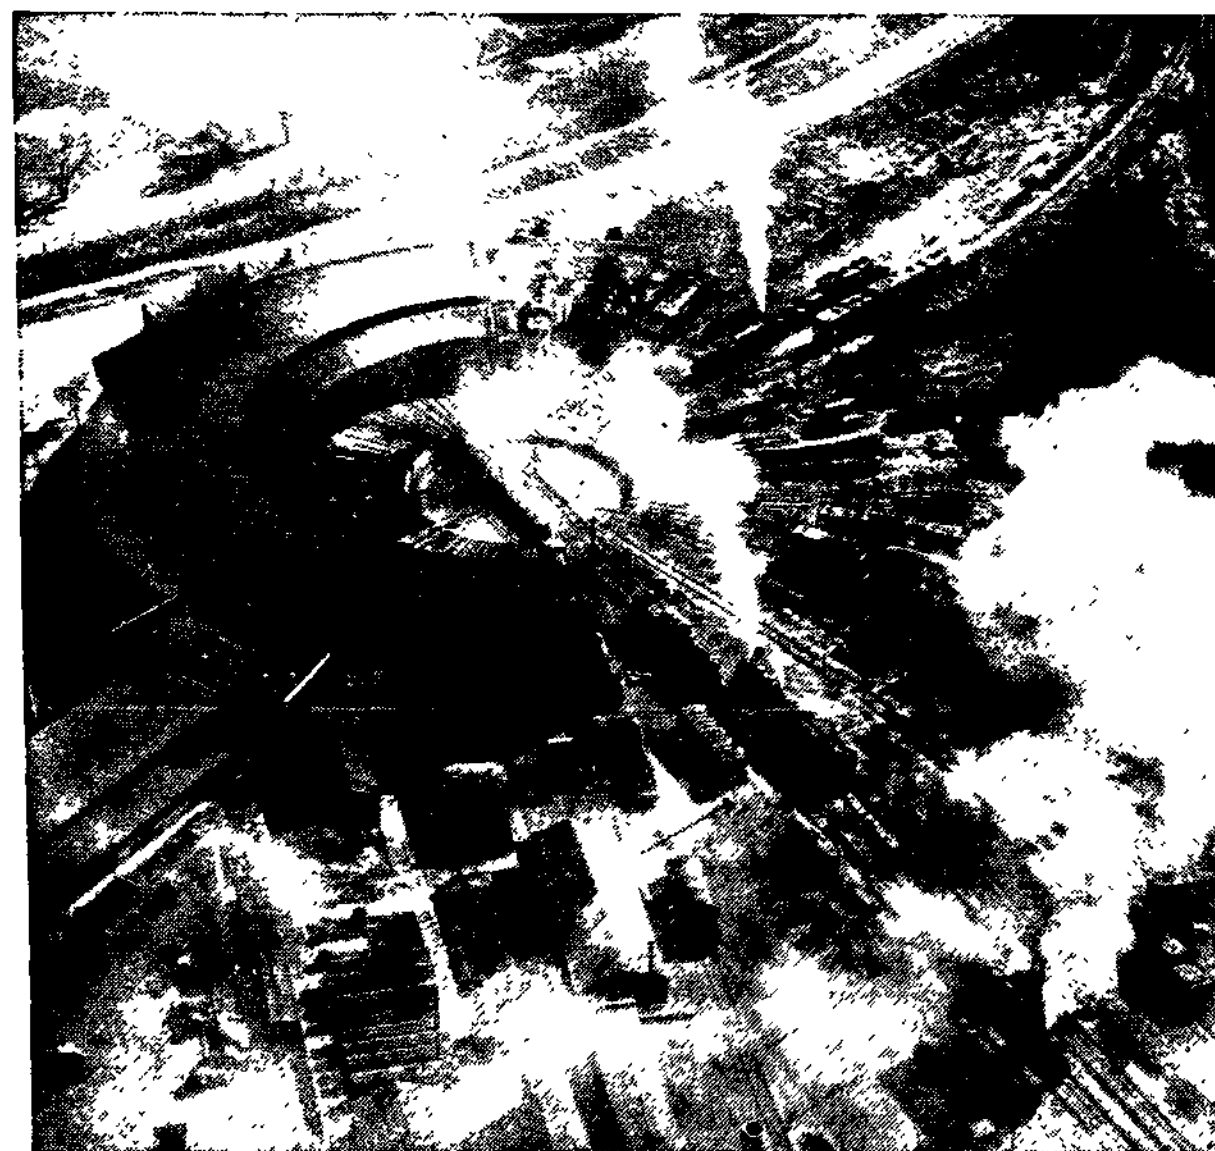

A MOTHER'S WATCHFUL EYE—Bonnie, a purebred pointer, watches as her litter of 14 pups get their dinners from bottles held by Joel Eaton, three, and his sister, Joan, five, in St. Louis, Mo. The mother dog came from a litter of 18 herself, so large families are no surprise to her.

BLESSING FOR NEW DOOR—Alfred Cardinal Schuster, of Milan, Italy, blesses a new bronze door of the famous Milan Cathedral during an inauguration ceremony. The door, the third entrance to the church, is the work of the late Italian sculptor, Franco Lombardo. Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi attended the ceremony.

HE HURLED THEIR HIVE—When a swarm of honey bees landed on a Navy patrol plane at the Miami, Fla., Naval Air Station, chief Petty Officer R. D. Romine went into action. Because he'd handled bees at his Montrose, Colo., home, he was able to find the queen and finish the ticklish job in which only the photographer got stung.

ROUNDHOUSE RENDEZVOUS—This roundhouse in the railroad yards of El Reno, Okla., is part of the industrial scenery of America. With the 1500 switchmen who defied President Truman's intervention in their strike bowing to a court order and returning to work, roundhouses like this one are busy again, and tracks are humming with the sound of swiftly-turning wheels.

VISITORS HERE—Heading south upon their arrival at Hoboken, N.J., from Belgium, are two-year-old Helene Ranwez and her baby brother, Francis. They'll visit their grandparents at Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

APPRECIATION—An enthusiastic spectator is giving a one-man ovation to Miss Cote D'Azur, representing the southern coast of France at a bathing beauty contest held in Frankfurt, Germany. She was one of the numerous entrants in appearances being held prior to the selection of Miss Europe in Paris next October, and her brief Bikini suit caused a storm of front row applause.

Sizzling Reds Whip Brooklyn In Both Ends of Double-Header

By The Associated Press

Shades of 1914. Can Luke Sewell perform a miracle at Cincinnati? You have to stretch a point to call seventh-place Cincinnati, 11½ games out of first, a pennant factor. But you can tip your hat to Sewell for the Red revival. The man who led the St. Louis Browns to their only pennant doesn't quit. Last by 17 lengths June 24, the Red may not qualify as the 1950 miracle team but they are the Dodger-killers. If Branch Rickey muffs the pennant, he can blame Cincy.

The sizzling Reds polished off the ambitious Brooks last night in both ends of a twilight-night doubleheader, 3-1 and 6-2. That made it eight out of 11 over the Dodgers this season and 19 wins in their last 25 starts. Or, if you prefer, 21 of 29.

Kenny Raffensberger's cunning control stuff silenced the Brooks in the opener despite Don Newcomb's five-hitter. Then Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell struck out nine in a sizzling night performance. Neither Cincy pitcher walked a man.

Ted Klussek was the big man of the first game. His first-inning single drove in one of two Cincy runs and his 17th homer in the sixth added the last.

Blackwell bested young Chris Van Cuyk, a sensational winner in his only previous big league start. Van Cuyk left with the score tied, 2-2, and two men on in the seventh. Joe Landrum walked the bases full. Then Landrum took Bobby Usher's roller and threw to catcher Bruce Edwards, who let the ball get past him for a two-run error. Joe Adcock singled home the other two. As a result, the Dodgers are three full games back of St. Louis and Cincy is only a half-game back of the sixth place New York Giants.

While Cincinnati lowered the boom on Brooklyn, the New York Giants bounced to smother St. Louis, 13-3. The loss didn't cost the Cardinals the lead but narrowed their advantage over Boston and Philadelphia to a single game.

The rained-out Braves didn't have a chance to gain and the Phillies missed their opportunity, bowing to Pittsburgh, 10-8, in a slugfest that lasted almost three hours. Ted Beard, Gus Bell and Danny O'Connell each had three hits in the 16-hit attack.

Despite homers by Dick Sisler, Granny Hamner and Del Ennis, Pittsburgh struggled home to win for reliever Murry Dickson. Ralph Kiner's 27th homer off Russ Meyer in the eighth helped nail it down.

Leo Durocher's Giants really got revenge for the 18-4 and 10-3 beatings of Wednesday as they piled it up against the Cardinals with an eight-run third inning. Dave Koslo, a non-winner since June 29, copped his ninth with a nine-hitter. Five double plays and 16 Giant hits, including three by Don Mueller, made it easy.

Everybody closed in on the Detroit Tigers yesterday when they lost to Boston, 6-5, in 11 innings. The runner-up New York Yankees, not scheduled to play, gained a half game, Cleveland and Boston each picked up a full game.

Dom DiMaggio's double off Art Houtteman scored Billy Goodman with the winning Red Sox run to cap an uphill struggle. Detroit did all its scoring off Walt Masterson before he was knocked out in the fourth inning. After that Chuck Stobbs and Ellis Kinder pitched excellent relief ball. Pat Mullen bashed an inside-the-park homer for Detroit with a man on in the third and Walt Drope hit his 24th for the Red Sox in the fourth. The Sox pulled within one of a tie on Bobby Doerr's 13th homer in the eighth and evened matters in the ninth on two walks and Vern Stephens' single.

Sam Zoldak and Bob Kennedy teamed up on Philadelphia for Cleveland's 3-2 victory in 11 innings. As a result the Tribe is only 4½ games back of Detroit.

Kennedy tied the score with a homer off Alex Kellner after two were out in the ninth. Zoldak, who replaced Steve Gromek in the seventh, shut out the A's with two hits the rest of the way and drove in Kennedy with a "bloop" single to left in the 11th. Kennedy scored all three runs.

Rain postponed the scheduled night game between Chicago and Washington. It also washed out the daytime game in the National between Boston and Chicago.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

DRAW TRUMPS WHEN DOUBLING LOW BID

By OSWALD JACOBY

"I don't know how many bridge experts there are," said Hard Luck Joe, "but I don't think you'll find one who agrees with our bidding. We could have made a game at anything but spades. I don't think 200 points is a satisfactory exchange for that game."

"I also don't know how many bridge experts there are," said Joe's partner, East. "But I'm sure of one thing. There's one less than you think."

The cause of this little exchange was the hand shown today. Joe holding the West cards, had made a take-out double of the opening bid of one spade. East had passed for penalties.

Joe opened the king of clubs, holding the first trick. East signaled with the device of clubs, but Joe continued the suit anyway.

South ruffed the second club with the four of spades, and returned a low heart. West put up the jack of hearts, but East overtook with the queen of hearts to lead the queen of spades.

South wins with the ace of spades, cashed the ace of hearts, and ruffed a heart in dummy. He returned to his hand by ruffing a club with the six of spades. By this time he had already won five tricks, and the king of trumps was a sure sixth trick. That was

CEMENT WORK

Service Charge For Redeeming Unused Tickets Approved

Washington, July 21—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission has approved a plan of nine eastern railroads to collect a special service charge for redeeming unused or partially-used passenger tickets.

The charge will range from 10 to 25 cents, depending on the cost of the ticket.

The charge will not be made when a traveler redeems a ticket which was not used because of some fault on the part of the railroad.

Under the ICC order, the nine roads may start the collection of the service charge any time after July 29.

The commission noted that the fee will tend to discourage some unnecessary purchases of tickets and commented that there have been large quantity advance purchases when a passenger fare increase is in prospect.

The order also asserted that the charge will not fully cover the expense involved in redeeming tickets but said the fee will be "a step toward reducing the deficit in passenger-service operations."

The authority for the charge was given to these railroads, which asked for it last January: The Boston and Albany; Chesapeake and Ohio; Lehigh Valley; New York Central; Norfolk and Western; the Pennsylvania; Pennsylvania-Reading Seashore Line; Pittsburgh and Lake Erie; and the Reading Company.

Your Span of Life May Be Calculated By Mother's Age

By The Associated Press

One of the most interesting studies in recent years indicates that there's a pretty good yardstick you can use to figure out how long you may live, barring accident or some acute disease. Check back and see how old your mother was when you were born. The younger she was, the longer you may expect to live.

According to this theory, it makes no difference whatever how old your father was. However, if your mother gave birth to you when she was only twenty to 25 years old, the chances are you will live ten to fifteen years longer than if your mother were forty when she had you.

These conclusions are based on the birth and death records of some ten thousand persons. These records showed that under conditions existing a century ago, children of young mothers lived about seven years longer than those of older mothers. Because there has been a great increase in all life expectancy in the meantime, it is considered probable that the differential today would be from ten to fifteen years or more.

Why a woman under 25 can give birth to longer-lived children than an older woman is a medical mystery. The facts are there in the records, but there's no tangible explanation for them. Some time, no doubt, the explanation will be available.

The Changing Landscapes

HAROLD W. GEIGER
Soil Conservation Service

Hello, folks. These frequent showers certainly are causing some concern among Warren County farmers who have lots of hay yet to be made.

However, conservation farmers are still on the increase. Albert Stoffan, Columbus farmer, completed making his farm conservation plan last week. Al plans several terraces and some strip cropping to combat the serious erosion on his side-hill farm.

Muro Wright, well known Spring Creek farmer, finished his conservation plan this week with the help of Mac McSorley, Soil Conservation Service technician. Muro is really "sold" on grassland farming as the way to produce cheap milk and combat erosion all at the same time. His plans are to use grass for silage and to eliminate corn from his crop program.

Gerald Hammond, Columbus farmer, also finished his farm conservation plan this week in which he plans to lay out and build several drainage terraces to help dry up the wet soil on his farm.

Max Warner, Sugar Grove farmer, started to work on his conservation plan too and plans to finish it this week. Max's troubles also include drainage of wet soils.

Conservation surveys are finished on two of Oscar Lauger's farms near Wrightsville. Oscar is all set to make his conservation plans now that he has the inventory of soils, slopes and erosion on these two places.

Thursday the largemouth bass arrived for stocking the ponds of Albert Firth, near Lander. Glen Schuler on Yankeebranch, and Frank Bull at Wrightsville. These are fingerling size and were furnished by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service hatchery at Lamar, Penna.

And speaking of fish, Bob Walters, Lander farmer, told a real "fish story" at a regular session around the cracker barrel in Hank Preston's village store the other day. Bob tells that he has had two nice-sized largemouth bass (about 6 inches) jump into his boat while he was out on his pond. The bass were stocked late last summer as small fingerlings and Bob thinks the growth is nothing short of a miracle. (Most of us have to use hooks and lines, Bob).

Potatoes dug too early will not keep well.

The war situation in Korea, and the possibility of a Third World War, serves to focus attention upon our forest resources which have played such a tremendous part in the past two World Wars.

Long continued overcutting, in which adequate forestry measures to insure a continued supply of timber have been conspicuously lacking, has left too much forest land in the United States either devastated or so poorly stocked that it can contribute very little high quality material to a sustained war effort.

It is significant that each war requires vastly more timber products than the preceding war.

In 1940 and 1941, before we were even in the war proper, the United States used for military purposes the equivalent of the total military consumption of lumber in all of World War I. During 1942-1945 more than 15 times as much lumber was consumed for military purposes as was consumed during World War I. This Second World War utilized enough lumber to build more than nine million average sized five room homes.

For every soldier sent overseas 49 per cent of the lumber goes for construction; 42 per cent for boxes crating and dunnage, and 9 per cent for fabricated products.

In these days of metal ships we perhaps fail to realize how much wood still goes into ocean-going vessels. Every Liberty ship required 350,000 board feet to build it. A PT boat required 28,000 board feet of lumber of highest quality. Each 10,000-ton cargo ship took 250,000 feet of timber to brace the cargo.

Plywood and veneer were used extensively in World War II for boat hulls, life rafts, trucks, freight cars, containers and radar equipment.

One cord of pulpwood made smokeless powder for 90,000 rounds of ammunition for a Garand rifle, or 24 rounds for 16-inch naval shells.

For every soldier sent overseas 300 board feet of lumber was required to box and crate his initial supplies, and nearly 50 feet of lumber per month was needed to maintain him.

In order to preserve the American way of life every timber land owner must develop a sense of stewardship for the land he is entrusted with so that each acre will contribute its full share toward a growing America, and in time of war will be able to play a vital part in assuring victory.

Barring another World War, we have at most about thirty years left to put our forest land in condition for future sustained yield production. We must realize that if our forests are destroyed, or their productive capacity greatly reduced, we cannot expect the rest of the world to supply us with timber, nor can we long remain a democracy.
